PRESENT EMPLOYMENT

Berkeley Research Group, LLC, Director, December 2015–Present

Labor economist with significant experience in all aspects of the application of labor economics, statistical analysis, and damage calculations to problems involving labor and employment issues.

As a consulting expert or testifying expert, provide assistance and prepare economic expert reports in a variety of complex disputes, litigation and arbitration matters, and proactive risk management and compliance reviews:

Economic and statistical analyses performed in connection with matters involving allegations of employment discrimination with respect to various employer actions (compensation, hiring, demotion, promotion, discipline, performance evaluations, job assignment, training, termination), executive compensation, breach of employment contract, personal injury and wrongful death, and wage and hour litigation. Analyses may involve the development and use of large and complex analytical databases and the design and estimation of sophisticated econometric models.

Extensive experience in the calculation of economic loss involving allegations of discrimination in pay, hiring, promotion, discipline, and termination, personal injury, and wrongful death. Estimation of economic loss related to all forms of compensation and fringe benefits including stock options and stock shares, defined benefit and defined contribution pension plans, analyses of job availability by occupation and/or industry, and calculation of present value of lost household services and life care plans. Damage calculations prepared in single-plaintiff, multi-plaintiff, and class action matters. Currently serving as Chief Economist for the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund, reporting to the Office of the Special Master.

Analyses of reasonableness of employee compensation as compared to the relevant labor market. Analyses may involve a review of base, incentive, and total compensation, and the use of various compensation surveys and company disclosure documents.

Prepare pro-active economic studies and reviews involving analysis of compensation and pay equity, labor force reductions, collective bargaining negotiations, economic impact of proposed projects, regulations or laws, and utilization of minority and women-owned businesses in procurement activities.

Supervise and coordinate the work of economists and other research staff. Lead and manage projects by designing, organizing, planning and directing the preparation of cases from initial client contact through the final report and/or expert testimony.
