SUMMARY

Andrés F. Barrera is an Associate Director with Berkeley Research Group based in New York. His work primarily involves valuation of businesses and assets, and economic, financial and regulatory analysis in the context of commercial and investment arbitrations.

Mr. Barrera has primarily worked on arbitration proceedings under ICSID, ICC, UNCITRAL, and ICDR rules. His valuation experience comprises diverse industries, including electricity generation and distribution (conventional and renewable), food and beverage, infrastructure, mining, oil and gas (exploration, production and distribution), and telecommunications. His experience involves projects in numerous locations including Argentina, Bolivia, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Panama, Peru, Spain, Uruguay, and Venezuela. These matters involved the development of complex and customized valuation models and the drafting of expert testimony.

Mr. Barrera holds an MBA from NYU Stern School of Business, specializing in Corporate Finance and Strategy. He also holds a Master's degree in Economic Development from the Yunnan University of Finance and Economics and a Bachelor of Arts from Wheaton College, where he majored in Economics and International Relations. He previously worked at Compass Lexecon from 2015 to 2024.
